

Lesson Five: Chakras and the Radiant Energy Field

Rather than approaching chakras as vague metaphysical notions, we work with them as precise, clinically reliable focal points of life functions and healing transformations. In my years of clinical practice and mentoring other practitioners I was often asked to treat patients who had not responded to either conventional or holistic care. While I could help some, the results were uneven - which was painful to me. Everything shifted when I began integrating chakra-based protocols. Conditions that had resisted even the best treatments began to resolve more effectively, more predictably, and with lasting impact.

Why does this work? Because each chakra is a living microcosm of the great universal qualities - love, power, will, creativity, wisdom - and a direct channel for the Divine to express itself through human form. The clearer these qualities flow through you, the more you embody your true destiny: to live as an Avatar, a radiant expression of Divine presence in human experience.

Blockage or distortion in any chakra lies at the root of much chronic suffering or energy blockages. Clearing these obstructions opens the way to profound healing and awakening

From a clinical standpoint, chakras function as organizing hubs for physiology, emotion, memory, and meaning. When they are congested or distorted, symptoms persist. When they clear, systems reorganize.

Your clients, and you yourself, are much more than bodies with minds and feelings. You are a radiant energy field, extending several feet around and beyond the body. This field acts as a vast storage medium, holding impressions from every joy and trauma, every blessing and wound, every pattern of resilience as well as every residue of unfinished experience. It contains talents, virtues, and memories, but also ancestral burdens, hidden programs, and unresolved pain. We can call these stored influences imprints.

The chakras are the access points for clearing imprints from the radiant field. Think of them as portals or gateways - openings through which you can track, engage, and uncreate the imprints that distort the natural flow of energy. When the field is cleared through the chakras, those universal qualities of love, power, wisdom, and creativity flow more freely again, and the client often feels profound shifts in both body and spirit.

This is why chakra work is clinically powerful: it allows you to access the radiant field directly and work with the deep causal layers of health and disease. When you use the chakras as access points, you're working with the software of the human system - not just the hardware - and that's when real transformation becomes possible.

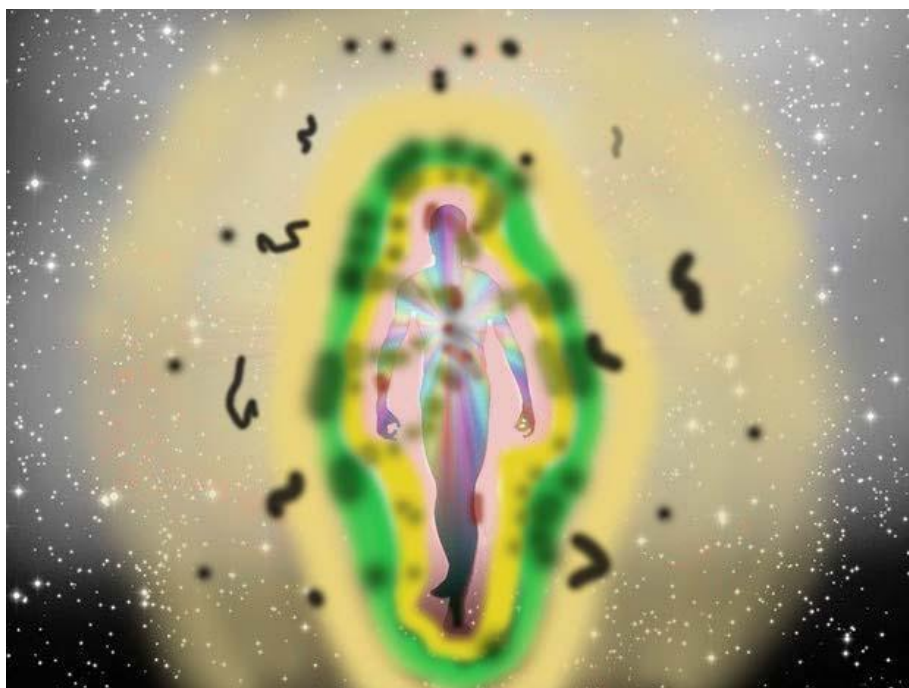

It is highly beneficial to clear the Radiant Energy Field prior to performing therapeutic methods such as bodywork, acupuncture, chiropractic, psychotherapy and much more. Addressing the deeper root in this way makes whatever professional method you're offering more deeply effective. It also opens and illuminates your consciousness so you act more like a shaman and less like a technician, technically speaking.

Clear Radiant Energy Field

Burdensome Imprints in Radiant
Energy Field